Children's Experiences of Domestic Abuse – new report highlights concerns

The Domestic Abuse Commissioner has published a new report examining children's experiences of domestic abuse.

Of the services spoken to by the Commissioner, over half (51%) stated they had had to place children on waiting lists due to the number of referrals they were receiving, while others were forced to turn them away entirely. In some cases, this may have left children in unsafe situations and at risk of further harm. The Commissioner raised concerns that the response to children experiencing domestic abuse has so far failed to meet this recognition.

Drawing on a survey of more than 260 domestic abuse services providing support to children, along with 168 statutory agencies responsible for commissioning domestic abuse services, the findings show the immense financial pressure specialist services are under and how children are paying the price.

Public Health Peterborough Impact for Good Survey

'Impact for Good' Survey 2025

Public Health at Peterborough City Council are embarking on some work across the Council and wider public sector in Peterborough to understand how they can work better with local voluntary, community and faith-based groups:

Understanding the needs and strengths of the local voluntary (VCSE) sector

We are keen to build on existing relationships and to improve our ways of working with voluntary organisations.

We understand that since the cost of living crisis, and Covid-19 pandemic, voluntary organisations have done more than ever to support local people and bring people together in local communities.

But we've also heard that since then many of your organisations have faced previously unseen challenges and need support in some areas and would welcome new ways of working with the Council and our Health partners.

Therefore, we would like to invite you to provide honest and detailed feedback in this survey. The insights you share will feed directly into our work to develop how we can partner with and empower the VCSE sector going forward.

Please complete the survey by Friday 30th May: <https://forms.office.com/e/aeTpsSyJ9Q>

First Crime Survey data on older victims of DA published

For many years, the Crime Survey for England and Wales was age-capped at 59. The age cap was increased to 74 a few years ago and has now been removed. A team led by Professor Hannah Bows from Durham University has published a paper detailing domestic abuse crimes against people aged 60 – 74.

Key findings include:

- 11.9% of adults 60-74 reported lifetime intimate partner abuse 6% reported lifetime family abuse
- In the last year, 2.1% reported IP abuse and 1.1% family (3% total, compared to 6% 16-59 year olds)
- In the last year, 75% female victims for IP, but for family abuse it was 52.9% female and 47.1% male victims
- Older adults with bad or very bad reported general health with limiting disabilities or long term illnesses have three times higher DA risk – twice as likely for IP and 4 times for familial

Serious Violence posters for parents

As part of the Cambridge Community Safety Partnership's work to develop educational campaigns to prevent violence, focussing on younger people to increase safety in our city centre, a series of posters for parents have been developed that include information and signposting on topics relating to their children and serious violence.

This series of posters is an extension of the existing county lines poster that Cambridge City Council Community Safety team worked on in 2023, and new topics include: drugs, knife crime, online abuse, and unhealthy friendships. These topics were unanimously chosen by small groups of parents the council's Community Safety team spoke with in Cambridgeshire and Peterborough.

These posters have been developed with partners and funded by the Office of the Police and Crime Commissioner (OPCC) / Home Office with Serious Violence Duty Funding.

The posters can be shared and used across both Cambridgeshire and Peterborough.

Freedom to be Me

In this 12 week course we look at the way that abusive men behave and what they believe about the roles of men and women in society.

The aim of the course is:

To help women who have experienced domestic violence make sense of and understand what has happened to them.

To recognise potential future abusers.

To help women gain self-esteem and the confidence to improve their lives, instead of the whole experience just feeling like a horrible mess.

This is a rolling, women only, programme running for 12 weeks.

These sessions look at:

How the abuser maintains control.

The tactics and beliefs of abusive men.

The effect of domestic violence and abuse on any children living in the home.

The sessions will also help women to understand that what has happened to them is not their fault, as well as providing them with the knowledge needed to protect themselves and their children from harm.

The Freedom Programme is a domestic violence programme which was created by Pat Craven who holds the copyright (all rights reserved) and evolved from her work with perpetrators of domestic violence. We provide information, not therapy. It is free of charge and open to all women, regardless of age, class, ethnic origin, disability, sexuality, nationality, religion or cultural beliefs. It is also open to women with or without children.

Government launches call for evidence on men's health

The government is calling for men of all ages to come forward and feed into England's first ever men's health strategy.

The 12-week call for evidence will gather vital insights from the public, health and social care professionals, academics and employers so the government can properly consider how to prevent and tackle the biggest issues facing men from all backgrounds.

It will ask for their views on what is working and what more needs to be done to close the life expectancy gap between men and women, as men in England die nearly 4 years earlier than women, on average.
